assistive dinnerware

Design features

By sliding the utensil between the gap of the partition, users can easily cut through their food using one hand.

The sensory guide is a small indent on the rim of the plate that allows users with vision impairment to easily locate the partition.

The depth of the plate coupled with the partition allow the user to scoop up their food easily.

A wider, smoother handle for an easier more ergonomic grip. Designed for all hand sizes; the slanted line provides pinky support for users with bigger hands.

The slight edge on the inside of the bowl acts as an indicator for users with visual impairment. When scooping along the inner wall, the edge signifies to the user to stop.

Bowl features an ideal curvature for scooping and containing the food in the center of the bowl, where it's most visible.
